

NEW REGISTER OF DEEDS

Mrs. Helena Coltart, Clerk To Late Incumbent, Appointed For the Coming Year

Mrs. Helena Coltart, who has been employed as clerk in the Knox Registry of Deeds since July 27, 1931, has been nominated for the office of register to succeed the late Albert Winslow. Her term of service will be for the coming year, in the progress of which an election will be held to fill the two years of Mr. Winslow's term which will then remain.

Mrs. Coltart was born in Rockland, daughter of the late Capt. Charles H. and Harriet (Vose) Huntley. Prior to entering the the Knox Registry of Deeds she had been employed in the law offices of the late Walter H. Butler and Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., the Standard Oil Company and the Curtis-Wright Company.

She has displayed remarkable aptitude for her work in the Registry of Deeds and her services were highly valued by the late Register Winslow. Those who have business with this important office have found Mrs. Coltart extremely helpful and courteous, and the appointment is one which will give general satisfaction.

Help Armed Forces

Showing How It Can Be Effectively Done By the Aproned Fighters In Kitchen

Housewives have a golden opportunity to help the armed forces by making November and every other month a "Food for Freedom" month, says Mrs. Rena Campbell Bowles, assistant foods specialist, Maine Agricultural Extension Service. The aproned fighters in the kitchen can save for better use the 15 percent of food now wasted. Here are some of the ways that Mrs. Bowles suggests for making that saving.

"Let's eat more foods raw to increase our daily supply of vitamins and minerals. Raw cabbage and turnip wedges, spinach, kale, and carrots are crunchy and good sources of vitamin A and C. If used in salad, chop just before serving.

"Vegetables retain more of their vitamins and minerals if cooked quickly in a small amount of water. Use any water that is left in soups, stews, sauces, gravies, and vegetable cocktails. Don't throw the water down the sink, or that may become the best-fed member of the family. Let's not have the pot waste either. When vegetables are pared, pare them thin. Eat garbanzoes, too, such as parsley, lettuce, spinach, and endive. They supply minerals and vitamins.

"Plan to purchase best buys for the week and seasonal surpluses in your locality. Know the family needs and requirements based on sound food knowledge. Keep meals well balanced by knowing how to use meat substitutes, stretchers, and extenders wisely and attractively. Plan menus well in advance.

"Save vegetable tops and outer leaves when possible. They contain vitamins and minerals, too. Chop them, and use them in salads, cook as greens, or when partially wilted add to soups.

"Bones from meat and poultry serve as a basis for soups. Leftover slices of dry bread can be used in making many appetizing dessert dishes and stuffings and toppings for scalloped and casserole dishes. Fat drippings should be saved for frying and seasoning many foods. Try out poultry fat for such foods as baking and cookies."

Morse; question, "Should we enter a United States of the World?" Robie Ames, F. L. S. Morse, Harold Nash, W. M. Cunningham and Orett Robinson; pictures of Maine, Orett Robinson; duet, Mrs. Erma Kinney and Miss Leola Robinson; remarks, members and guests.

The next meeting will be at Penobscot Grange hall in December.

Annual City Reports

Show That the Municipal Affairs Have Been Wisely Conducted

Joshua N. Southard, chairman of the board of overseers of the poor, in his annual report to the City Government, revealed that of an appropriation of $17,280, $5,956.51 was unexpended.

City Marshal Laurence K. Mansfield's report showed that 377 arrests had been made during the year; that police officers found 256 doors unlocked; that his department had investigated 78 motor vehicle accidents and that fines amounting to $2989 has been assessed by the Municipal Court.

Adoniram J. Bird, chairman of the assessors, reported that Rockland's valuation was $6,836,760 and the tax rate 48 mills.

City Clerk Edwin R. Keene's report showed 169 marriages, 156 males born, 161 females born, 145 deaths of males and 112 deaths of females. Chief of the Fire Department Van E. Russell's report showed 263 service calls and $100,000 saved by use of salvage blankets. He recommended the purchase of 25 more blankets; that the alarm system condition be considered and that action be taken to the end that a modern fire prevention and building code be adopted.

Report of the Public Library trustees, Harold P. Blodgett chairman, showed 30,206 books circulated and 13,600 books collected for use of men in the service.

The Council went on record as favoring the State pension plan, and a resolution presented by Alderman Francis D. Orne provided for actual action on the matter at the first meeting of the 1944-1945 Council, which takes office in January.

The finance committee is to meet with Supt. Alden W. Allen at a later date to discuss proposal by the school committee that $5700 additional be appropriated for salaries of teachers.

Thanksgiving Tea

As is the regular custom, when Thanksgiving time comes around the directors of the Home For Aged Women invite the people of Rockland and vicinity to share with them and this excellent institution, the comforts and blessings they have received through the year.

Our needs are money, fruits, vegetables and home supplies. Rockland has always been most generous, and appreciative of this well kept and exceedingly well managed home for her dear older ladies, who share together its blessings.

Our excellent matron, Miss Ames, tells me she has plenty of points to use, and money is the vital thing needed by her. We welcome what ever is in the hearts of friends to give for Donation Day.

With them we wish to share the tea for the ladies of the Home and the Board of Directors who supply the dainties for this tea. So come and bring your donations from 2:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday Nov. 23.

Per order of the President and Directors.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

On the second day of this month the present city water system had been functioning 58 years. Few cities have finer or better conducted service. Turn the tap and on comes the sparkling crystal from Mirror Lake. Extras if you wish.

What sort of a curriculum do they have at Smith College. A Boston Globe dispatch tells of a poll conducted by the undergraduate newspaper in which the students expressed the "sure" opinion that Alfred de Marigny didn't kill his rich father in law. Does the fact that the Bermudian government told Marigny to pack up his duds and quit the country increase the Smith girls' romantic interest in the acquitted man?

Out in Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, Pvt. David White of Warren ate a blueberry pie. It was made from Maine berries grown and packed at Columbia Falls.

If you were inconvenienced by this week's early snowfall pity the Waldo County man who has six acres of potatoes under a foot of snow—still undug.

The thief who stole a suit case down in Hartford, Conn., has been warned that it contained poisons, a sniff of which would mean sudden death. If the thief possessed the average amount of curiosity and cupidity, he was probably dead long before the warning came. Or was it another of those "the thief is known" bluffs.

"Sheriff Ludwick's Doberman Pinscher 'Blitz' may be a mighty smart dog but my German Boxer 'Trooper' can give her cards and spades," says Mrs. Stanley Poland of Waldoboro. It develops that "Trooper" is a sauer-kraut eater, among other accomplishments. But that comes of being a Waldoboro resident.

Jack Kingsley, the well known turfman thinks of retiring from the horse-racing business in favor of another vocation which would probably surprise his many friends throughout the State. Some weeks ago he introduced a charming Rockland girl to a gentleman friend who lives in another city. Result a wedding early the coming year. "Why, don't you start a matrimonial bureau?" asked one of Jack's friends. And Jack is giving consideration to the idea.

Due to meat rationing, fish traffic by railway express has shown marked increases during recent months and many tons of ice are used to protect this highly perishable food commodity in transit. As Americans consume only 13.3 pounds per year per person, while the Japs eat 53 pounds a year each, Uncle Sam proposes to beat the Nipponese in this field, too, by stimulating increased fish production beyond its present day level of 4,000,000,000 pounds.

One year ago: The Islesboro-Lincolnville Beach ferryboat, Gov. Brann, resumed service after repairs here—Lincoln E. McRae, Jr. was elected president of the Maine Association of Student Councils. Among the deaths: Camden, Mrs. A. Sanford Carroll, 77; South Thomaston, Caroline Korpinen, 82; Rockport, Wilbur Carleton, 73; Roxbury, Mass., Miss Della Bean, formerly of Rockland, 71; Rockland, Mrs. William T. White, 64.

HEADS MIRIAM CIRCLE

Mrs. Luke S. Davis was elected president of Miriam Circle at the annual meeting held this week. Other officers are: Miss Doris V. Hyler, vice president; Miss Maude Hupper, secretary-treasurer. There will be degree work at the next meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge, Dec. 7. It is expected that Laura E. Fuller of Camden, district deputy president, will be present. Supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Davis.

BUYING WISELY AND BUYING EARLY!

"Buy Only What You Need, Thoughtfully, Carefully,
But Immediately!"

Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower
Commission said:

McNutt Asks Early Buying

"Many of our retail stores and service establishments are now seriously under-staffed. The possibility of obtaining any additional temporary or short-time workers to meet this situation is extremely questionable, and the additional supply of labor, which may be available, will be inadequate to meet the usual demands unless the normal rush of Christmas business can be advanced and spread more evenly over a longer period.

"Early purchasing and shipping of Christmas gifts by the public is imperative to relieve the big demand upon transportation facilities and retail stores and services, and will assure civilians more adequate service in fulfilling their shopping needs. The co-operation of the public in every community can be a notable contribution to the most effective use of the man-power available to meet civilian needs during the holiday period."

Rockland stores are operating on shorter hours—less help and the slow delivery of merchandise from the manufacturers—all make it essential for merchants and shoppers alike—to heed this warning and really buy early this season.

THE LORD SHALL CUT OFF ALL FLATTERING LIPS, AND THE TONGUE THAT SPEAKETH PROUD THINGS.—Ps. 12:3.

Book Review

(By K. S. F.)

"The Story of the Bible People," by Muriel Stribert Curtis.

This same author wrote "Youth and the Bible." She is the brilliant and highly intelligent Professor of Biblical History at Wellesley College. This book is an excellent help to the consistent and devout study of God's Word, as given us from thrilling pictures painted by this student of Bible times.

When a person of Muriel Curtis' caliber carries the reader back to the Hebrews in their wandering life, enslaved by the Egyptians, and finally led out of bondage by Moses, and fills her pages with instructive and interesting maps and pictures, she is accomplishing vital work. It is good to find a book for family reading, and one that can be used by Sunday school teachers for classes from 9 to 14 years of age.

Her fine story of Christ, greatest of all heroes of world history, is told with vivid beauty. The book comes at a period of world conditions, both sad and restless. Hope and courage are given in the story of the spread of religion, told with a brief and arresting directness that catches the attention and impresses the reader. Just the proper book for a Christmas gift, beautifully bound in holiday green. Published by The Macmillan Company, New York.

K. S. F.

"Journey In the Dark." Harper's prize novel for 1943-1944. Author, Martin Flavin.

It would be hard to find a more sensitive portrayal of life, as lived by an enterprising and full-blooded American youth and man. The hero of this decidedly well balanced story, was born with a love for better things than were to come his way in youth. Over-sensitive, devoted to a sweet understanding mother, but with a shiftless and lazy father, the wrong things were constantly happening to him, no matter how hard he tried to do them well.

The reader learns to love Sam Braden. He wanted wealth and he went after it with his mind made up to be a successful man of affairs. Yet loneliness followed him on and on. He measured success through the few wealthy families he saw through childhood, and later these fixed in his mind's eye, proper standards. Sam's strength was mixed with youthful weakness; he was no hero in his own eyes, far from it, and he despised the bad in himself as well as in others.

The judges who gave this story its high marks of favor were Irita Van Doren, Bernard De Voto, and Clifton Fadiman. They found this novel to be alive, and skillfully related through all the years of intricate living. It is life as lived by thousands. Its scope and richness of detail and the sorrows and disappointments are so natural and humanly told, one seems a real part of the story, and finds himself absorbed in sympathy from beginning to the very end.

It has the human values that is American and like no other land. The present war weaves its cruel menace through the novel, and an original feature intriguing to the reader is the resume of historical happenings of note through the years, in a concise and arresting moment. A Harper publication of note.

[EDITORIAL]

WARDING OFF THE WOLF

Coal is going to be scarce this Winter, and wood may be an even greater fuel problem, but cellar shelves in many Maine households are literally groaning beneath the weight of the canned goods on which prudent housewives labored so industrially during the producing season. According to the Maine food specialist, Dr. Kathryn Briwa, more than seven million quarts of meats, fruits and vegetables were canned in the rural areas, and while these delectable materials will not serve to keep us warm they will go a long way from keeping that figurative wolf from the door. In addition to the goods canned at home nearly half a million cans were put up at the 50 centers supervised last Summer by the Maine Department of Education. Emphasis has been placed upon the health element during these canning operations seeing to it that use was made of those fruits and vegetables which are particularly rich in vitamins and minerals which contribute to the family's health. In our careless way of living that may not seem quite so important for a can of peaches will look just as tempting as a can of peas although there may not be quite as many vitamins and calories squirming around in it.

GOOD OFFICIAL RENAMED

Gov. Sewall has renominated Arthur R. Greenleaf as sea and shore fisheries commissioner for another four-year term—an act which will bring a fervent "amen!" from all who are interested in one of Maine's largest and most vital industries. During his first term Commissioner Greenleaf, who was formerly sheriff of Lincoln County, has done everything in his power to advance the cause of the fishermen and promote more satisfactory laws. How well he has succeeded may be judged from the mounting receipts of the Maine fishermen as revealed in the monthly reports of the Sea and Shore Fisheries Department. Gov. Sewall is keeping a good man.

A HUNDRED AND VERY HAPPY

When Warren F. Butler of Lincoln attained his 100th birthday Tuesday he invited the whole town to help him celebrate it. If one is to believe the veracious newscasters everybody went, and everybody took a birthday cake. That picture is considerably overdrawn, no doubt, but it certainly was a big party and demonstrated the town's affection for the aged man. There's no sentiment more laudable than respect for those who have long and honorable lives.

NO GRASS BENEATH HIS FEET

The organization of "Hildreth For Governor" clubs throughout the State is causing the politicians and other voters to sit up and take notice. The other candidates may follow suit, or they may select other propaganda methods, for Hildreth's early activities bespeak the dynamic power of the ex-collegian who won his spurs on the Bowdoin football team.

PAPER SHORTAGE, NO WONDER!

When we read those paper shortage warnings it rouses our ire to think of the millions, and probably never read by more than a dozen persons. And there's no greater offenders than your Uncle Samuel. Waste! Waste! Waste, everywhere.

THE O. P. A. IS USED TO IT

Charges made by the special House committee investigating executive agencies (Representative Howard W. Smith, chairman) against the Office of Price Administration are, most of them, pertinent enough to set a loud chorus of amens, even though they cry about milk long since spilt and partly mopped up. Almost everybody will join heartily in the committee's exhortation of "illegal, absurd, useless and conflicting regulations." And certainly the point about O. P. A.'s assumption of the roles of judge, jury and prosecutor, a role not without precedent among executive agencies, is well taken. But on this point it must occur to the thoughtful that Congress made the law creating the O. P. A. and creating at the same time the Emergency Court of Appeals in Washington as the sole recourse of a citizen protesting O. P. A. rules or acts. That part, at least, of the committee report is therefore more a criticism of Congress than of the agency.

The important part of the Smith committee report is, in fact, its recommendation that Congress amend the laws "to eliminate the abuses and injustices now apparent." We should like to see this recommendation made specific. A legislative formula which would separate legislative and judicial from executive functions whenever sweeping delegations of power must be made would be rather more valuable than the committee's promise to expose still other executive agencies which combine these functions. The principle of the combination was always wrong and its injustice in practice had been demonstrated long before O. P. A. (One recalls "trials" of the National Labor Relations Board).

As for the tendency of O. P. A. to usurp power through misinterpretation of the law, that is a danger inherent in too great and not clearly defined delegations of power. The fact that the Smith committee's investigations have made it alert to the danger is salutary. For while we may hope that Chester Bowles' policy of replacing theorists and professional bureaucrats in O. P. A. high places with business men has already corrected some of the lesser faults the committee finds, we agree with the committee that some major corrections must come from Congress itself.—Herald Tribune.

GASSY BLOAT BELOW THE BELT?

Flatulent indigestion—the kind that makes you feel full of easy bloated misery around and below the belt often arises as a result of a lax colon and a sluggish flow of intestinal secretions in the large bowel.

This condition may retard prompt digestion of food, causing an excessive amount of gas that may press on the organs and reflect itself in many discomforting symptoms. For relief, try Espotabs as directed.

They help encourage the normal flow of intestinal secretions and help activate the colon to relieve itself—without upsetting the liver, causing nausea or the washed-out feeling that often follows the taking of violent flushing laxatives.

In this way good old Espotabs have been helping thousands of people for many years. Get a box of Espotabs today and get them at your druggist.

Designers Strive for Eye-Appealing Packages

The men who design the packages for soap, breakfast foods and other products pay great attention to the relation of color and shape to eye appeal, says the Better Vision Institute.

Most companies selling packaged goods to the public have redesigned their containers in recent years so as to obtain better color combinations and greater legibility of names and trade-marks, thereby facilitating easier retention of the pictures of packages in the public's memory, and quicker identification of packaged goods on the shelves of retailers. Designers have given special consideration to shape of containers. Boxes that are long and narrow seem to contain more than those that are low and wide, thus leading consumers to believe that they are getting "more" for their money. This optical consideration is one of the chief reasons why most containers of packaged goods are oblongs.

Bottles containing perfume, olives, catsup, etc., have their height greatly exaggerated to create the illusion that they contain more of the goods than they do. Through the adroit use of long lines of type, eye-carrying designs, and colored stripes, many packages take on greater size in the eyes of consumers.

Specialist Says Millions Of Pounds of Milk Wasted

Enough milk to supply 120,000 troops for one year is being wasted annually because of careless handling, says J. H. Hetrick, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

This quantity of milk, estimated at 43 million pounds, would be worth more than $750,000. Representing the production of 11,781 cows, the labor of 1,179 people is required to prepare this amount that is deemed unfit for market purposes.

Of all the factors to be considered, efficient cooling and the use of sterile utensils are most important, Hetrick says. Soap is not a good cleanser for milk equipment because it leaves a film which can not be removed easily by rinsing. This film harbors bacteria and makes sterilizing difficult.

Milk leaving the udder of a healthy cow contains very few bacteria, but these will multiply rapidly unless the milk is cooled to a temperature below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Within 12 hours at 80 degrees Fahrenheit, one bacteria will produce 3,000 new ones, but little growth takes place under 50 degrees.

Trick Eyes

Characters in animated illuminated signs, atop buildings on the main streets of American cities, seem to move because they trick the eye.

The illusion of movement of the lighted figures and designs results from the fact that any visual impression lingers for a fraction of a second on the retina of the human eye. When the flashing of the lights is timed correctly, the fading retinal picture of one light fuses with the incoming picture of another light. This gives an illusion of movement, making possible the novel advertising signs of playful cats, swinging children and other animated characters.

The principle of this interesting optical illusion can be demonstrated simply by two flashing lights, placed eight or ten inches apart. If the lights are flashed on and off alternately at just the right speed, the eyes will see a single light moving back and forth.

FEELS IT WAS HIS DUTY

Rockland, Nov. 16.
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
I see our honorable Mayor says as there was no other candidate appearing. Doesn't he think I am anybody? If they nominate me I will guarantee I will give the city a good business administration and I don't want $2500 a year salary; $400 would be enough, and I would look out for the taxpayers' interest. I was a volunteer in the Spanish War and I saw active service.

I don't want a job, but for the same reason I went into the Spanish War, I feel it is my duty to run.

Five Tons Of Paper

Collected In Salvage Drive At Camden—Tin Can Collection December 6

Paper, rags and scrap metals were collected last week for the Fall salvage drive, and the next collection at Camden is for tin cans, Dec. 6. Charles Lord, Salvage Chairman, said this week. A freight car will be in Rockland to receive the cans Dec. 7, Pearl Harbor Day. The Camden collection is scheduled for the sixth, to allow one day leeway, in case of rain. Should it rain on the 6th the collection will be on Tuesday, the 7th.

More than five tons of paper were collected last week, and some scrap metal. The salvage committee appreciated greatly the help of the volunteers who helped on Armistice Day. Use of trucks was donated by Kendall Hopkins, Harold Nash, and P. G. Willey, and the town. Drivers of the trucks were Mr. Hopkins, Maurice Nash, Willard Wight, Percy Luce and Archie Herrick. The boys and girls of the seventh and eighth grades who helped were: Joan Connelly, Grace Lenfest, Gloria Manning, Julia Thomas, Barbara Ann Rich, Marian Hary, Ralph Ayers, Edward Stanley, Alan Hatch, Arthur Lunt, Johnson Talbot, Stanley Wheeler, John Morin, Leo Arau, Paul Putnam, Louis Arau, Henry Bickford, Jack Henderson, Walter Shorey, Robert Clancy, Carl Buck, Everett Harding, Richard Ayers, George Dean.

Emphasis cannot be placed too strongly on the need for salvaging every ounce of waste cooking fats, Mr. Lord said.

County Attorney Burgess Relates Inimitably a Personal Adventure

County Attorney Stuart C. Burgess presented a supplementary installment of his railroad story at Wednesday's meeting, topping it off with the narrative of one of his own adventures told in a humorous and professional manner that delighted his listeners. It related to his narrow escape from failing to make a business visit to Philadelphia, and how that failure was averted by the making of a chance acquaintance on the train when he left Rockland.

The speaker outlined briefly the early history of the railroad branch which has its terminus in Rockland. Under another name it was chartered in 1849, being kept alive by legislative authorization. In 1864 the name was changed to Knox & Lincoln Railroad, Rockland's contribution to the bond issue being $400,000.

The survey for the Bath to Rockland branch was completed in 1867 and construction started the following year. The first train arrived in Rockland in 1872. Efforts were made to extend the line to Belfast, but the plans never materialized. In the open forum which followed Mr. Burgess' talk the names of the early locomotives on the Knox & Lincoln Branch were given by Lions Inghram and Winslow. They were Francis Cobb, Edwin Flye, Henry Ingalls, Edward Sewall, Thomaston and John T. Berry.

Mr. Burgess spoke of the train despatcher system, with eight employees constantly on duty in the Portland office. They can tell where every train is at any minute in the day. Railroads carry 93 out of every 100 pounds of mail moved in this country.

How steam roads have speeded up traffic was emphasized by the statement that the trip from Boston to Washington is now made in nine hours.

Locomotives undergo tests every 30 days, the boilers being washed out and tubes blown. Annual tests are made in the shops at Waterville.

Hal Merrill of the Augusta Club described a game supper given by the Lions at Harland. He praised the local club's pianist Duke Annis and its song leader Howard Crockett. "Singing," he declared, "lifts the spirit."

Bradford Burgess occupied the chair Wednesday while King Lion Dandeneau went visiting at the Roughneck table.

"Pard" Kenyon back from his vacation visit to Lansing, Mich. was extended a cordial greeting.

Commander Fortin Tells Of Coast and Geodetic Survey and Life in Alaska

A map of Rockland, 36 inches square, on which could be identified each one of the city's buildings was but one of many interesting exhibits presented at the Baptist Men's League meeting last night by Lieut. Commander Henry O. Fortin of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. The pictures were taken by what was said to be the only nine lens camera in existence.

Commander Fortin is a Montanian who has been with his present service 17 years including six seasons in Alaska. During the past Summer he has been mapping the Penobscot Bay quadrant, including Knox County shores, and is making his headquarters in Rockland until the first of December.

The work of the Coast and Geodetic survey was outlined briefly, and in the course of the open forum answered many questions relating to tides, storms, weather forecasts etc. Commander Fortin knew all of the answers.

Of special interest was his description of two seasons spent in Dutch Harbor, Alaska, in course of which he told of Jap activities, of bird life, sea lions, etc. During his stay in Alaska Commander Fortin was transferred to Disappearing Island, which owes its name to volcanic eruptions.

Last night's supper partook of the nature of a full-fledged banquet and was greatly enjoyed by the members and numerous guests.

Past President Frank H. Inghram paid a fine tribute to the late Albert Winslow, a former member of the League and the members stood in silence for one minute.

Alden W. Sewall was admitted to membership.

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

CHAPTER IX

Two days later a Peterboro hung offshore a few miles east of Isadore's fur-post. In the boat a man searched through binoculars for a canoe paddled by a woman.

"If it's an ambush, Blaise, she won't show up," insisted Finlay. "For they'll expect me to land early at the beach to wait for her. They'll be there and will not on me at once. What would they gain by waiting and bringing her into it? She might get hit."

"Mebbe so!" grunted Blaise, his face gloomy with apprehension. "If she does show up, Garry, what are the odds?" demanded Red.

"If this thing is straight, I can't have her think that I haven't trusted her. You're to keep out of sight behind that first point until five o'clock, then move around and pick me up. She'll have before that."

"Chief, you're crazy!" exploded Malone. "That spruce point's a mile from the little sand beach. Suppose they catch you with her? We're out of the picture! We can't reach you!"

"I tell you, Red, they'll never let her come if it's an ambush. There'd be no object in it. If she does come, she'll see that I trust her—believe in her. Don't you realize how humiliating it would be to know that I think her capable of the tricking me like that? I suspect her and am bringing a guard!"

"Oh, I see what you mean, but I don't like it. I want to be handy in case of trouble."

"Thank you, Red."

Garry again raised the glasses. "There she is!" he announced, quickly. He was conscious of the sudden pick-up of his heart. "Who?" he murmured, as a wave of elation beat through him, "have I got it as bad as that?"

The Peterboro reached the spruce point and Garry stepped out. "So long, Blaise! See you soon and I'll have something to tell! Bo-Jo, Red!"

But Malone and the eager Flame joined Finlay on the shore.

"What's the idea, Garry?"

"Going to kiss me good-by?"

"Take this, Garry. Red pushed a black automatic into Finlay's hand. "It may be useful."

"No, I've got my service .45. She's the sweetest gun I ever owned. I don't need this."

"Take it for me, will you, Garry?" But Finlay shook his head. "So long, Red!" He stooped and patterned the nervous air. "Bo-Jo, Flame, old pal! Can't come this time! Stay with Red!"

With a wave of his hand Finlay started on his long walk. Lise Demarais was waiting, when he reached the white beach. He suddenly realized how she had obsessed his thoughts since he last saw her grey face that night at Isadore's. And now, in her desperation she had turned to him.

Lise stood beside her canoe. "Somehow I knew you'd come!" She grasped his hand.

Warm with color from her long paddle, she was even lovelier than he had remembered her. "Could any man have refused to come after such a letter?"

"Yes, knowing what you do, most men would have been afraid. They wouldn't have trusted me."

"But I'm a mind reader, as I told you. And I'm worried about you, Lise Demarais."

"You're also a brave man." There was a look in her blue-black eyes that started his blood singing. "Let's sit down. It's a long story."

She threw herself on the sand, offered him a cigarette from a silver case and lit one herself. For a time she smoked, clasping her knees while she gazed straight before her under brows like black brush strokes on her transparent skin.

His eager gaze moved from the dark cloud of her long bob and the brilliant eyes to her round throat.

"I don't know why I should have turned to you in my trouble," she began, unless it's because you're in great danger yourself. Don't you realize they won't let you finish this survey—won't let you leave this country?"

"Forget the survey! I know Tete-Blanche is after us. I saw him at the head of the lake. We'll take care of him. I came here to learn why you've got to leave Isadore's place and when."

"I was frantic when I wrote you. It must have sounded delicious and strained but I was desperate. I'd just had a terrible scene with Jules. He insists on my marrying Felix Blondell, his partner. I've refused time and time again. But he won't listen. Blondell handles the business in Montreal. He's coming in the August plane. He drinks hard when he's here and I'm afraid of him."

Finlay's face was flint-hard as he listened.

"Jules told me I'd had my chance and refused it," she went on, her breath quickening while her pulse beat in her throat. "He said when Blondell came in August I'd have neither his sympathy nor his protection. I could take care of myself. Think of one's stepfather saying a thing like that!"

Finlay's eyes were savage with dancing lights. "Isadore said that to you?"

"Yes and more. It was ghastly! You don't know Jules Isadore!" she cried. "He can purr like a cat and be so smooth—so charming. But he's as pitiless as a wolf. He killed my mother with his women and his heartlessness. Of course, he's given me a home, education, clothes. But his word has always been law. Corinne and I live like children; are told nothing. He's so secretive. Why we've positive there's something queer going on here, now, at Waswanipi, but we don't know what it is."

Finlay was alive with interest. "Queer? What do you mean?"

"Every summer, in August, a plane flies down from the north. Later, it goes south but it carries no fuel. Why should a plane fly here every August and go south empty?"

Garry Finlay, also, wanted the answer to that question. At last he had struck something. "That's strange!" he said, his face as impassive as wood. "It always comes in August, you say?"

"Yes. That's why I warned you not to stay here until August. I overheard Jules boast to Batocchio that no prospectors nosing around here in August would ever see home. He thinks you're prospectors, you know."

"Then he's struck gold and wants to keep it a secret?"

"Corinne and I think so. We've an idea he ships the gold dust and nuggets in bags on that plane and doesn't want anyone to know about it."

"But why should it come from the Bay?"

"We don't know but he seems to want to hide the direction from which it comes. That's sure. He's nervous as a cat, then, won't even have Indians around the place."

Finlay wondered what he had stumbled into. A plane from the Bay? What did that mean? Then he said: "Mrs. Isadore got the drugged wine intended for us. What did he intend to do—drop us in the lake?"

"No, I think he wanted to search you—learn who you were. I was so afraid something would happen. I wanted to warn you. Then I saw that hideous Tete-Blanche. After you left Jules struck Corinne for drinking that wine—struck her in the face. He was like a madman."

"Nice fellow! Of course he knows he can't last long at this game. Already six men who have entered this country have been wounded. The police will be here soon."

"Six men?" she gasped. "I've heard of only two!"

"Six prospectors have disappeared and two men have been wounded." Finlay smiled significantly.

"Your limp, that night!" she suddenly cried, her eyes wide with understanding. "You—you were wounded in the leg on the way here?"

"Yes."

"They ambushed you on the Not-taway! But you're all right! Oh, they'll stop at nothing! I want to understand now why I've got to get away!"

"Yes. What was Tete-Blanche doing that night?"

"I don't know."

"Well, don't worry, we'll have you safe at Matagami by August."

She gave a deep sigh. For a space they smoked in silence while Finlay's thoughts were busy with the mysterious plane. Then he glanced at her. She was smiling at him through curious eyes.

"Charming gossip we're having on my bathing beach on this lovely July day!" she said ruefully.

Her mood had suddenly changed. The compelling charm of her drove from his head all thoughts of Isadore. A beautiful girl sat beside him, desirable, baffling. And in her slow smile was veiled challenge.

"You swim here often?"

Her eyes were busy with a trim moccasin toying with the sand. She raised them and her lip curled. "Fishing for an invitation to join the beautiful mermaids? If you are, you're distinctly not invited. We usually swim in our scales, you know."

She flung herself around, facing him, and impulsively took his hand. "What children are these?" she cried. "This is the second time I've ever talked with you, Garry Finlay, and I'm babbling like a sub-deb at her first big dance."

"I never met one but I'm sure I'd love sub-debs." He leaned toward her. "Do you know how lovely you are and—how dangerous?" he said.

A warm undertone of pink pushed up over her neck and cheeks. She seemed suddenly confused. "It's growing late! I've got to go!"

"What on her feet. 'You'll take your Matagami when I write? How can I thank you for daring to come? Oh, it's like a reprieve from a death sentence! I want to dance and sing!' She stood beside her canoe grasping her paddle. Her voice quavered: 'Au revoir! Very nice and reckless man!' Her eyes danced dangerously."

"When you send word, I'll come!" he said, thickly. He slid her canoe into the water, turned and with a quick movement had her in his arms.

With a swift catch of the breath she flung back her dark head and smiled up at him. He kissed her hair and eyes and responsive mouth. "You're so sweet!" he choked.

"You've bewitched me! Courage, midnight eyes! I'll take you to Matagami. Good-by. Beautiful!"

She gave a low laugh as her arm tightened on his neck, and for a moment returned his kisses, then breaking away, leaped into the canoe and paddled off. Reaching the point, she blew a kiss with her hand and passed from sight.

His pulses drumming, Finlay stood at the edge of the water, groping for his mental balance. With her charm and changing moods Lise Demarais had played on his senses as a musician on a harp, run the gamut from laughter to tears. The hard-boiled Garry Finlay had been pliant in her hands as a willow sprout, but in the end she had left him wondering whether she was sincere or a consummate actress.

At the thought he glanced up and down the beach. The shore was deserted. Still under the spell of the girl who had paddled away, he started for the spruce point to meet the Peterboro. Again he felt her arms on his neck, her warm lips, looked into the dancing depths of her eyes. "Acting? What's got into you, Garry Finlay? That girl is straight as a spruce. She's in trouble and frantic to get away and I was the path out. Emotional, of course! Doesn't care a damn for me, but when I lost my head she just couldn't help being human. But she's gorgeous—enchanting!"

He had reached a stretch of shore piled with boulders and had cut back into the bush where the walking was easier when the brittle snap of a dry stick stopped him in his tracks. His body stiffened while his right hand moved under his shirt to the stock of his .45.

"What's that?" he muttered.

Again there was a movement in the brush somewhere in front of him. Finlay slipped behind a spruce, his eyes stabbing the surrounding undergrowth. Then, from his rear, came a sound in the scrub, and he flattened under the low branches.

"So it was acting after all!" A wave of remorse chilled him like a bitter wind as he lay beneath the overhanging boughs. Surrounded as he knew he must be—caught in Isadore's trap—his ears strained for movements of the men who hunted him while his thoughts hung to the girl who had so lightly led him to this.

"She was so natural," Finlay groaned, inwardly. "So terrible real! And her story seemed so straight. But that was just the bait to catch the mouse! Poor Red and Blaise! What have I done to them?"

With a shiver he brushed her from his thoughts. Shame and chagrin vanished. With his .45 covering the direction of the last sound it was another man who lay there, a cold fighting man who waited like a cornered wolverine for a movement in the scrub. Sentiment had led him to play the fool against his own judgment and that of his friends. But the fool would show Isadore's wiles how his .45 could sing before the jaws of their trap snapped on him.

Evidently, from the fact that they had not shot him on the beach, their intention was to take him alive. But they must think him armed or they wouldn't have waited. That meant what? Some devilish scheme of Tete-Blanche's? "All right!" Finlay muttered. "We'll play it that way! That gives me a break!"

Brush snapped behind him. His eyes flashed back but saw nothing. They had him surrounded but could not reach him without drawing his fire so he was playing safe. For minutes he lay rigid, listening. Not a sound marred the serenity of the windless forest. Then, from somewhere in front, came the whistling scream of a hawk, to be answered from the rear.

"They're signalling! Going to stalk me!" Finlay muttered.

Presently his roving eyes caught the glimmer of a young spruce shimmering as if touched by wind. But there was no wind. The spruce top moved into the notched rear of the .45. Again the spruce quivered and Finlay glimpsed a pair of glittering eyes in a swift face. Like glass splintered by a hammer,

Device for Weaning Calves
An electric calf-weaner has been invented by Patrick Kelly of Anson, Wash. The device consists of a small battery that fits around the calf's neck and a metal contraption that rests on its nose. A wire connects the two. When the calf is ready for food, the metal contraption touches the animal and closes an electric circuit. In this way the calf is shocked. The device should make it more pleasant for the mother and at the same time give the baby a quicker start in life.

From three sides came the snapping of twigs as the hunters closed in on the hidden quarry. The eyes of the trapped man blazed with the fighting flame of a beast at bay. His nerves were ice as he knelt, watching in three directions for the rush that was coming.

Suddenly there were yells and a thrashing in the brush. But the concealed man would not be stampeded into showing himself. Then a ring of men simultaneously rushed a few yards, to fade, flattened to the earth. But one never moved again. A slug from the .45 had drilled his forehead.

"Three gone!"

"They're close in, now!" muttered Finlay. "The next one will reach me!" His eyes ceaselessly traversed the surrounding undergrowth stippled with sunlight filtered through the spruce tops. Not a leaf stirred. "Good-by, Red, Blaise! I'm sorry!" he whispered. "So long, Flame, old partner!"

Then five men flung themselves at him. He found the white head of Tete-Blanche and the .45 flamed. Again it roared. They reached him and he fired point-blank into a grimacing face. The face burst into a bloody mass. With his heavy gun he bludgeoned a black head that dove at him. Free, he stumbled back and swung at another. As he did there was a blinding flash of light in his eyes. He sagged to his knees, then to the earth.

Plant Storage
When storing plants should be kept away from the furnace, yet kept away from outside freezing, too. Most root vegetables should be kept as cold as possible without letting them freeze, that is, the temperature range kept between 32 and 40 degrees. At least one window in the storage room is valuable, since it can provide ventilation and carry off odors, as well as regulate temperature. Windows should be darkened to keep light away from the vegetables. Natural earth makes a very good floor for storage rooms. It holds moisture better than concrete or brick.

Army Repair Shops Busy Restoring Many Articles

Millions of articles of army clothing and equipment are being repaired each month by quartermaster corps repair shops in all parts of the world. At present, nearly three million articles are being turned out monthly by shops in the continental United States alone.

Quartermaster corps repair shops handle all articles of clothing and equipment, including such items as tents, blankets, haversacks, canvas, webbing and other textile articles, typewriters and office machines.

Quartermaster shops at approximately 260 posts, camps and stations in the United States are saving the government nearly two million dollars a month through their repair activities. Overseas quartermaster repair shops are in operation at numerous bases. These fixed installations are supplemented by repair shops on wheels, operating in theaters of operations where it is impracticable to set up permanent establishments.

Articles in excess of the capacity of overseas repair units are returned to the United States for repair or salvage and are handled at newly established repair sub-depots on the east and west coasts.

Rubber Tapping

On each side of main straight-up-and-down incision on rubber trees, tributary incisions are cut to bring in the latex to the main down-the-tree stream, after the manner of brooks emptying into a river. This is known as the herringbone pattern. A second phase of the better tapping methods concerns the manner in which the tapper climbs the castilloa tree. In the past tappers often have not climbed the trees at all, thus failing to get much rubber that might be obtained from the upper trunk.

They are now taught to use rope belts slung around the tree and around their seats, as a means of hoisting themselves up the trees. They climb with their bare feet, leaving hands free for knife wielding. One tapper, using the better methods in untapped territory, went from tree to tree, climbing and tapping each, and collected 1 1/2 gallons of latex in two hours. Another, in a less promising area, got five gallons in an hour and 40 minutes. This contrasts with about five gallons a day expected from a good tapper by the old methods.

ceased was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, daughter of Alexander and Barbara Turner.

Mrs. Bissett has been a resident of this town for many years, a devoted wife and mother, a kind friend and neighbor. A member of Marguerite Chapter, O.E.S., she attended the meetings as long as her health would permit.

Services were held Wednesday at the residence. Rev. Charles Mitchell officiated. Members of Marguerite Chapter, O.E.S., attended in a body. There were beautiful floral tributes. Interment was in the family lot in Carver's cemetery. The bearers were Harvard Burgess, Frank Sellars, James Ross and P. L. Roberts.

Those from out of town to attend the services were Mrs. Mary Sullivan and daughter Gertrude Sullivan, of Haverhill, Mass.; and William Bissett of Portland.

Buick Boosts Bomber Engine Production

MASS PRODUCTION OF Consolidated B-24 Liberator Bomber engines is accelerating in Buick plants where fourth quarter output is scheduled to jump 36 per cent with total volume for the year three times that of 1942. As a result of heavily increased volume and the mass production techniques involved, substantial reductions have been effected in the cost of bomber engines to the armed services with the price per horsepower of the Buick-built engines believed to be the lowest in the history of aviation. Photo shows engines on assembly floor awaiting packaging and shipment.

Vanished Men by GEORGE MARSH

● Jules Isadore, the big fur man of the Waswanipi country, thought he was quite secure. He had the Indians scared to death. And "the land of the long snows" would never yield up the secret of the six missing men.

But Jules did not reckon on the determination of one Garry Finlay, who came up from the South to find his brother, Bob. He did not know about that air-raid. Nor could he foresee how love might intervene to make his daughter an ally of the man he sought to eliminate.

Washington And You

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, Nov. 17—Even in the big boom of war work, there is unemployment, and many workers are thinking about what they will do when the war contracts end. The Government is trying to make workers stay in war jobs, to cut down the terrific turn-over which slows up production just at this time in the war when so much depends on keeping right up to the peak. Workers are interested in what Social Security is going to do for them, and Congress is giving very careful study to the various proposals, including proposed expansion of unemployment payments, and temporary disability insurance.

I have one letter from War Manpower Commissioner McNutt, who has charge of Social Security too, about a case I took to him of a constituent who will not get any Social Security payment, is physically unable to continue working, and is now over 65 years of age. He will not receive back any of the money he put into Social Security during the time he worked.

Mr. McNutt says that the law specifies that a worker is not eligible for Social Security payments unless he has received a wage of not less than fifty dollars in each of a total of one-half of the quarters of years since January 1, 1937. The purpose of this requirement is to limit benefit payments to persons who have been fairly regularly employed. The requirement means that the worker must have made at least $50 in each of twelve quarter-years since January 1937. It was the hard luck of my constituent that he had received wages in only ten quarters. Under the law many survivors receive benefit. This is part of the total benefits of the system. Under the system of social insurance, Congress did not provide for the return of contributions. There are several bills pending which would provide disability benefits, and count those quarters in which the worker was receiving disability benefits in such a way that his eligibility for old-age benefits at the age of 65 is not impaired by his having been out of work. I shall certainly bring up this case as an example, when hearings begin on Social Security legislation.

I am glad to be back in my office again. The trip West was informative and we are busy preparing reports and recommendations, from which we expect definite improvements. I found many Maine people living and working out there. It is a beautiful section of this country, but I still prefer Maine.

Many letters have come to me from widows and others eligible to pensions for Spanish War veterans asking about H. R. 2350. This bill increases pensions and changes the marriage date to 1938. The letters say that the cost of living has gone up so much that an increase in pension is badly needed. Letters favoring the bill have also come from several United Spanish War Veterans organizations.

The rise in the cost of living hits hard on those who live on pensions, annuities, and other fixed income, and that is one reason why Members of Congress, as well as the Administration, are trying to hold down the cost of living and wage increases which would join together to make an inflation and ruin those living on the small incomes who cannot get even a small increase.

I have studied this bill—I was a Member of the Pension Committee that gave this consideration for three years and have heard much discussion on similar proposals. The bill is now on the House calendar.

Among the letters received on various deferment problems are those about the drafting of young men from Maine farms where they are badly needed. These letters are heartbreaking—because behind the words I can see the whole picture of homes from which nearly all the men have gone, especially those of strength and young health, leaving only women or elderly people and children to do the work.

Often those left behind are not able to handle the crops or the cattle, and they face loss of a livelihood, in addition to everything else. Decisions about deferments rest with the local draft board, and all I can answer to these letters is to urge that the whole situation be laid before the local draft officials. I confer with the State officials now and then and urge them to carefully study all the facts when a request for deferment of a farm

States Provide Cities

With Revenue Sources

Municipalities of a dozen states were benefited this year by the passage of legislation providing for new or increased shares of state collected taxes and the development of new sources of independent local revenue, the American Municipal association reports.

Cities and counties in Arkansas will receive for the first time a share of state sales tax collections. Allocations will be based on population except in the case of towns of less than 500, which will receive a flat sum of $200 a year. Alabama cities have been granted 20 per cent of the profits of the state liquor monopoly to be allocated on the basis of the ratio of profits earned by all municipalities to total profits of all state liquor stores.

The 1943 Kansas legislature provided for distribution of 75 per cent of net revenues from cigarette stamp tax collections to cities and counties. Amounts will be paid monthly to counties according to population ratio; half of the money will then go to cities within the county. Oregon cities will receive allocations from road-user revenues for the first time, and municipalities will be giving approximately $135,000 extra annually from increases in customer liquor permit costs. South Carolina cities and towns will receive about $300,000 a year from motor vehicle license fees, and Washington municipalities will share state collected liquor and motor vehicle excise taxes. A new Wisconsin measure allocates to municipalities 75 per cent of drivers' license fees when examinations are conducted locally. The North Carolina legislature re-appropriated to municipalities $1,000,000 annually of state collected highway funds for construction and maintenance of city and town streets.

Cure Onion's Outer

Scales Before Storage

Onions must be cured before they are stored, so that the outer scales may dry and harden. If the weather is reasonably dry, and as long as there is no danger of frost, the curing may be done in the garden. First pull the bulbs and leave them on the ground with the tops attached. After a few days the tops will have dried and the curing will be complete.

If a sharp frost threatens, or if there is much rainy weather, the curing is better done in a shed or garage. The onions are spread on the floor or are kept in slatted, well-ventilated crates.

After curing, the tops are cut off and the bulbs are put in storage. Unlike most other vegetables, onions keep well only in a dry place. Most cellars are too damp, but a frost-proof attic usually makes an excellent storage place. At a temperature of about 40 degrees, the onions will keep in a dry place until late next spring.

Bulbs that have thick necks, or show soft rot, should be kept separate and should be used first, as they will keep only a few weeks.

boy comes up. This, I believe, has been done most efficiently in Maine from the first.

Camden Officer Weds Iowa Girl—Ceremony Took Place In California

Lieut. Andrew R. Sides of Camden and bride (Ann Mathern of Toledo, Iowa).

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Community Church, Miss Ann Mathern of Toledo, Iowa, became the bride of Lieut. Andrew Randolph Sides of Camden, now stationed with a Tank Destroyer Battalion at Yuma, Arizona. Rev. Lloyd J. B. Taber officiated at the rites and wedding music was played by Mrs. C. E. Patterson, organist, who arranged a medley of love songs.

The bride was attired in a soft apple green crepe afternoon frock, with fuchsia accessories and she wore an orchid corsage. She was given in marriage by G. F. Draper, a close friend of the young couple. Miss Bernadine Wurzbacher, the maid of honor, was attired in a frock of beige crepe with black accessories and her corsage was of sweetheart roses.

Hal F. Colwell served as best man. Following the marriage a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hargrave, Jr., 766 Toyopa Drive, and was attended by about 50 guests. A beautiful three tier wedding cake centered the attractive refreshment table.

The young couple spent a brief honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead Hotel before Lieut. Sides' leave ended. From "The Palisadian"—Pacific Palisades, Calif.

This And That

By K. S. F.

"That's just like him," said the former first lady of Maine, Mrs. William Tudor Gardiner, when she heard that her husband had gone through German lines in company with Brig. Gen. Maxwell Taylor and an Italian Admiral to visit Marshal Badoglio in Rome. He wanted information and he went after it in the most direct way.

Maine takes note that Amos N. Wilder, brother of Thornton Wilder, the author—both with Maine family background at Calais and at Hallowell—has brought out a book of poems, "The Healing of the Waters." Prof. Wilder was until this year a much loved and brilliant teacher at Andover-Newton Theological School. This fall he answered a call to the University of Chicago.

Public libraries are a powerful weapon in the forging of public opinion. It depends to a great extent on their policy which path the American people will take in the present world conflict.

At a time when Europe is burning its records of the centuries, and dictators are attempting to falsify the pages of history, the libraries of America stand as monuments to the spirit of freedom.

Watch Wendell Willkie grow in the hearts and minds of the thinking public of America. What foolishness to think that General MacArthur would jack his great job in this war to come home. And Governor Dewey has his great work.

Few realize that America has become the leader of the world in violin manufacture; also the United States has become the refuge of culture. More than half the States have this art at heart and craftsmen of expert calibre are doing expert and beautiful work gaining in tone quality with effort they make.

And now another form of penicillin is discovered with a potency 10 times the original. One can look for cold cures soon.

The Indians of the Pacific Coast have a legend of the origin of birds and why they nestle in the boughs of trees.

When the Great Spirit first stood upon the mountains to see the new earth he had created, wherever he touched the green hand a tree would grow. He was pleased at this and smiled, and then the trees were clothed in beautiful verdure. All Summer the trees grew, but the first cold of Autumn caused the leaves to turn gold and red and then to die. As they fell from the trees their creator felt that they were too fair to die so his gaze renewed life, and each leaf became a winged bird that soared and sung for joy. The robin came from the red-stained oak, the cardinal bird from the maple and the faded yellow of the willow decked the yellow bird. The homely brown leaves became sparrows and larks, and were given sweeter voices to compensate for their plain-colors. Since then trees and birds have belonged together.

When C. Winfield Richmond recently celebrated his 25th anniversary as organist at All Souls' Church in Bangor, he played entirely from his own compositions, with but one exception. His choir of 18 voices has been unusual in some respects. Cyrus D. McCready was the tenor, Mr. Richmond first came and has filled the position almost continuously ever since; Mrs. Helen Spearer Leonard, contralto, has been there longer than any other woman; Dexter S. Smith, bass, was an original member of the quartet and served until 1932. Nine sopranos have served for several years.

"George," said Mrs. Lovey to her husband, "I have received a letter from mother saying she is not accepting our invitation to visit us, and saying we do not appear to want her. What does she mean by that? I asked you to write and tell her to come at her own convenience. You wrote, didn't you?" "Yes," said George, "but—er—I couldn't spell that word, 'convenience,' so I made it risk!"

A Hope Boy Writes
Tells Of His Satisfaction At Being Appointed An Aviation Cadet

Santa Ana Army Air Base, Santa Ana, Calif., Nov. 9. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— I'd like to tell some of my friends back here of my experiences in the army in the past seven months. This is the best way I know of to contact them all. Tomorrow I finally receive my appointment as an Aviation Cadet although I am already in pre-flight school. We left Portland March 27 and stopped overnight in Camp Devens, Mass. There were 29 of us from Maine. At Devens we were entrained with the rest of the New England contingent for Keesler Field, Miss. For five long weeks we drilled in the hot April sun on the coast within a few yards of the Gulf of Mexico.

From Keesler we went to several college Training Detachments. I was shipped to Cleveland with two other Maine men May 5. Our four months' stay in that beautiful city was made very pleasant through the courtesy and efforts of the Red Cross and other organizations and individuals. Cleveland is, as you know, located on Lake Erie. The Stadium was the scene of many big league baseball games and we were invited to attend some of Horace Heidt's musical shows by his Musical Knights. The Terminal Tower, 42 stories high, affords an excellent view of Cleveland and surrounding towns. We got 10 hours of flying time and ground instruction at the airport.

Aug. 28 we went to San Antonio, Texas, to be classified as pilots, bombardiers, or navigators. I chose pilot and passed the examinations. But out here the C.A.D.'s could not supply enough men so some of us came to Santa Ana, Calif., to further our training. Now we have really started the actual work involved in becoming a pilot. From here on—well, Uncle Sam knows.

At last I have realized an ambition and come to Sunny California coming through 19 States on the way. The temperature here is much higher than it probably is at home. Today it was well up in the 80's.

We had our first overnight pass Oct. 31 and got into Santa Ana, Los Angeles, Hollywood, and Santa Monica. Hollywood, is a beautiful town but still doesn't compare with the good old State of Maine. I saw some snow a few days ago—on the mountains 85 miles away.

There are lots of opportunities in the Air Corps and room for many an ambitious person yet. It is tough but the end justifies the means.

My present address is AC Albert E. Jenkins, ASN 11068508, Sqdn 50 Ft. C.S.A.A.B., Santa Ana, Calif. I suppose you have heard about the fires around here and in the Santa Monica and Beverly Hills. The smoke is clearly visible from here.

Make Them Happier

City Matron Corbett Offers Timely Suggestion For Thanksgiving

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Thanksgiving Day will soon be here, while in some homes there will be sadness, because of fathers and sons fighting at the front—and in other homes here in Rockland—the inmates old—infirm recipients of Old Age Allowance sad too. Why not in the name of this father or son, make an elderly couple or aged person happier on this Thanksgiving Day, by giving a small basket consisting of fruit, jelly, or home preserves, cookies and cakes. This allowance is small, no surplus for any luxury. Let members of the family deliver the basket and see for themselves—the happiness it brings, for it blesses both "him that gives and him that takes," the gift not only given in the name of father or son, but in the name of the "Inasmuch" as ye did it to one of the least, ye did it to me.

Name and address gladly given. Telephone 663-W.

Vanished Men
by GEORGE MARSH

Six men traveled the Chibougamau Trail in the wilds of northern Canada. Six men died. Garry Finlay's brother, Bob, was one of the six. Foul play was suspected. And so Garry, square-jawed and steely-eyed, came up from the South. Aided by Flame, a giant airdale, Big Red Malone and Blaise, a half breed guide, he solved the mystery of the Chibougamau Trail. And somebody paid! For action, adventure, romance, read Vanished Men—

CAMDEN MOUNTAINS

In a beautiful panorama Of Autumn as day is done, And stippled with myriad colors By the afterglow of the sun. The distant mountains tower Like sentinels of time; Monarchs of the neighboring hills Where gathering shadows climb. They overlook the lakes beyond And dwarf the highest tree, In grandeur high above the town Reflecting on the sea. Withstanding Nature's mighty force, Unruffled by the years, A battleground for wind and storms That Winter commanders. Majestic heights that have endured, The handwork of God, For centuries they have looked down Where generations trod, Grim guardians of the countryside, They still will keep the trust When mortals such as you and I Have long returned to dust.

PEACE

The summons still, will come for me, Like the soothing blessing of peace. Or night's cool, enshrouding blanket Upon the face of tortured earth; Beside a lonely, pillared stone, By the three tall, sentinel oaks, A silent line of gnarled and dwarfs, Slow streaming out of solid rock, A crystal casket, borne aloft, Carved from cold, clear cavern onyx. The pigmy phantom caravan Bears Daylight to the Tomb of Earth.

GOD'S BEAUTY

I awake from refreshing sweet slumber To see in the morningtide sky An aspect of pure golden beauty Adorning the clouds low and high. Of the rain that we need now a promise A sign of the days rising sun, I behold with a thrill this disclosure Of the radiant dawn's benison. And beyond all this physical splendor The things of the spirit unfold, In the quickening beauty of nature God's love for mankind I behold. His kindness to all, to the thankful And good in His earthly domain, And also to bad men and thankless; On all He sends sunshine and rain. In me may Thy love be seen also By all of my neighbors this day, In my love of my friends, yes, and enemies. Thy beauty, O Father, I pray, All men may see, Amen.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Along the still green hedge-trimmed beds My lingering footsteps stray, While up and down the flowery walks The gay chrysanthemums lay. They covered all the bare brown earth Till one could scarcely see How such a mass of wondrous bloom Could ever centered be. And grow together in such grace As to efface the earth's dark face. Oh, lovely graceful Autumn flowers, Among the last to grow, O'er each declining wishful hour You golden, gleaming throw, For all the fading things of time You higher life foretell, And though they fade and seem to die, We know that it is well; And when our earth is brown and bare Your benediction still is there.

IN THESE DAYS

Where are the heroes these days? All on the battlefields at bay, With death to conquer as bullet plays Its angry stroke and direful way. Ah no, not all the heroes are there— But working at high speed everywhere With hearts a-tremble and souls distressed For dear ones in battles and wild duress. Country-bred lads—against their fears, Become heroes in moments of decision, They are armed with courage filled tears. But win the battle with quick transition. Mothers of men, heroines who tell Their strength in times of undying, By boldly meeting the stress filled peril Of fear, and greet it with hearts renewing In courage their will for victory pursuing.

Vanished Men BY GEORGE MARSH

Around the campfires in the Canadian wilderness men began muttering over the mysterious disappearance of six frontiersmen who had hit the Chibougamau Trail and never returned. They were in terror of Jules Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete Blanche.

But Garry Finlay, brother of one of the missing men, marched into the forbidden country with two others and Flame, his giant aide-de-camp. Neither bullets nor poison could hold them back. At last, scorched by the leaping flames of a forest fire, they solved the mystery of the missing men and brought retribution upon the murderers.

Report cards for the first quarter were received today. The honor roll will be posted next week.

Miss Anna J. Coughlin was a guest at luncheon, in the gym, Monday. At this time, Principal Blaisdell was presented with a beautiful birthday cake, made by Mrs. Doorman, and an original card, from the faculty.

Junior High held a social in the gym last Friday night. A movie was shown in the auditorium, games were played and refreshments served.

Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Flagg of Thomaston were guests at the bi-weekly faculty meeting held Monday afternoon in the library. Allston Smith, as chairman, introduced Mrs. Flagg who spoke on China, where she and her husband had worked as missionaries for many years. The teachers found her informal talk very timely and interesting. The Flaggs were located, with their two daughters, near what is now known as the Burma Road, and her description of the people, their customs, the climate, foods, houses, and dress were indeed enlightening. Mrs. Flagg brought with her a dress of one tribe with which she worked, and Miss Marion Ludwick of the faculty "modeled" for the audience this dark blue costume, with trimmings of blue, red, green and yellow, which had been woven on a Chinese loom, and colored with vegetable dyes.

Coffee was served under the supervision of Miss Katherine Taylor, instructor in Senior High Home Economics, with Mrs. Pitts and Mrs. Spear pouring. The tablecloth was a bowl of fruit, flanked with crystal candlesticks and crystal candlesticks. Assisting in serving were Eleanor Libby, Carolyn Cande, Dorothy Benner and Lois Winchenbach. Music was played by Betty Holmes.

Rev. Roy A. Welker, pastor of the Congregational Church, was speaker at the Senior High assembly Tuesday morning. He described in an interesting manner some of the peoples and places where his listeners will be traveling in the years to come. His description of Holland with its dikes and windmills, the customs and dress of the boys and girls, and its industries, made this far-away land seem very real and delightful. "But people everywhere are much the same," he said, "they are all engaged in the activities of life—getting a living, making a home, rearing the young, and worshiping God."

Other speakers were Allston Smith for Junior Red Cross, Gloria Witham for the War Bond and Stamp contest, and Lois Nichols, publicity manager for the senior class play. Erwin Worcester was chairman of the assembly and Muriel Adams was in charge of devotions.—Joan Abbott.

Tickets for the Senior Class play, "Night of January 16th," will go on sale Tuesday. The ticket sales contest, between Senior and Junior High, and also between the home rooms, will start Tuesday, also. There will be reserved and rush seats. Those buying the former, who are 21 years old or more, are urged to give their names to those checking the seats. From those names, 12 will be drawn to serve as jurors at the murder trial of the play. Christine Newhall is general manager of the business committee, with Elsie Norton and Almee Karl as assistants; ticket sales manager, Alice Hall, assisted by Joyce Mitchell, Betty Holmes, Vina Delmonico and Virginia Farrell; advertising managers, Gloria and Virginia Witham, with Muriel Adams and Albert Haver as assistants; publicity manager, Lois Nichols, assisted by Betty Hempstead and Joan Abbott; house chairman, Joan Baum, with Albert Haver as assistant.

Tuesday night at the girls' basketball practice, a surprise party took place, honoring Bill Sullivan on his birthday. When Miss Ludwick, chaperone, blew the whistle for the scrimmage, all the girls gathered around the honored guest and sang "Happy Birthday." He was then presented a gift and a birthday cake. Ice cream was served.—Gloria Witham.

Alice Hall and Joyce Raye, seniors in the commercial department, assisted Principal Blaisdell in the office this week. Office messengers from the freshman class of junior business training were Madeline Hoffes, Patricia Wellman, Peggy Dennis, Ellen Bray, Walter Drinkwater, Mary Guistin, William Woodman and Diane Curtis.

There will be no school Thursday and Friday of next week.

The second issue of the Highlight, which is being mimeographed this year, came out Monday.

Dana Cummings and Charles Grant, instructors in the Industrial Arts department, are attending the New England Industrial Arts Teachers' Association Convention at the Hotel Bradford, Boston, today and tomorrow. Supt. Alden Allen is attending the Superintendents' meeting at the same place.

The new director of instrumental music in the Rockland schools is Arthur F. Cain of Bath. The new director was for several years a member of Sousa's Band. He has had a diversified experience in the musical field, having directed High School bands and orchestras in the Middle West and Eastern States for the past 15 years. Mr. Cain is also director of the Waldoboro High School band.

There is an urgent need of beginners who wish to learn to play the different band instruments. Mr. Cain will be available part of every Tuesday to work with new pupils starting with the fifth grade and going through the High School classes. If a pupil does not own an instrument, he may secure one through Mr. Cain. It is hoped to have a complete beginners' band to fill the places of the older pupils when they graduate.

High School pupils receive school credit if they play in the band or orchestra. When they have completed four years' work in either organization, they receive a school letter awarded by the student council.

The debating Society has been reorganized for the year, under the direction of Mrs. Diana Pitts. Leaders of the Society are Pauline Stevens, Betty Hempstead, Ernest Munro and Jack Hatterson. The National question for debate is "Resolved: That the United States should join in re-constituting the League of Nations." The material used for this subject comes from the Bates Debating Council.

100,000th GM Woman War Worker

Mrs. Virginia Buechler in her new job as inspector of Allison aircraft engine crankshafts in the Cadillac Division of General Motors.

Detroit — Mrs. Virginia Buechler has just become the one hundred thousandth hourly rated woman employee of General Motors as a war worker in a Cadillac plant here. These 100,000 women represent approximately 30 per cent of the hourly rated employees of the Corporation whereas in normal times only 10 per cent of such workers are women.

With her husband on active duty in the U. S. Navy, two cousins in the Army Air Forces and an uncle with the U. S. Army in Italy, Mrs. Buechler came to Cadillac to do her full share in the country's war effort.

Besides her inspection work on crankshafts for the Allison engines that power most of the Army's fighter planes and pursuit ships, she invests more than 10 per cent of her pay in War Bonds, helps in the scrap conservation drive and is active in Red Cross work.

Mrs. Buechler was born in Leslie, Iowa, 22 years ago and is a graduate of Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, where she earned an A. B. degree in home economics. But home-keeping, for her, will wait until she has helped to win the war and bring her husband safely home.

CHURCHES

The office of deacon runs back to Apostolic days. It was created in the opening days of the Christian church. The 12 apostles, meeting with the great increase in the number of disciples, found it impossible to properly attend to their manifold duties. They called together a multitude of disciples and laid the matter before them: "It is not desirable that we should forsake the word of God and serve at tables. Therefore brethren select from among you seven men of good reputation full of the Spirit, and wisdom that we may put them in charge of this work."

The seven men selected, knelt before the Apostles who after they had prayed, laid their hands upon them and ordained them. So ever since the church has thus selected deacons that measured up to the stature required by the apostles.

Death has recently called such a deacon from his service in the First Baptist Church, Rockland—"Alden Bradford Butler." He joined this church on the year in which I was born. He served it unceasingly till his death. He is as much a part of my memory of the First Church as the pulpit. Honest, forthright, religious, he was a man to love and trust. Men did love and trust him—I did, and I shall never forget him.

There were exactly seven deacons during my life with this church—Hiram H. Crie, George M. Brainerd, A. Bradford Butler, Frank S. Kallach, Charles A. Young, Ephraim E. Post and Vesper A. Leach—men who qualified, before their brethren, as Christians worthy to serve as deacons. The entire community approved them.

So, also, during my early business years in Rockland, I recall four outstanding deacons in the Congregational Church—J. G. Torrey, L. F. Starrett, Albert W. Butler, and Eugene M. Stubbs.

Of course, there were many more in the other churches, but these men I remember; approved, in this ancient and holy office, Mrs. John Poquette, Mrs. Carrie Wallace, Mrs. Nancy Zohn.

Good Housekeeping Is Needed in Crowded Home

The more crowded the home, the more necessary is good housekeeping. Women living in small quarters, in trailers, or in makeshift homes, in order to be near industries where the men of the family are helping to win the war need to be efficiency experts if they are to contribute their full share to the nation's health, progress, and well-being.

To maintain cleanliness and orderliness in a small home that is shared by many people requires first of all good organization. This begins with the old-fashioned motto "a place for everything and everything in its place." It also means working out a schedule of tasks, and doing the tasks on schedule. Very often the reason small quarters get cluttered is because a routine of cleanliness is not maintained.

Dishes should be washed as soon as the meal is over and not left to stand around to draw flies or other vermin. Beds should be made as soon as they have had time to air thoroughly. The family should be trained to "pick up after itself" so that no dropped clothes, toys, or other articles get in the way. A flowering plant on the window sill is an asset, but a lot of bric-a-brac adds confusion.

Among the citations from the Bible are the following passages: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." (1 Cor. 3:16, 17).
